

Fachschaftsteam

Towards a true „Energy Union“?

Speaker:

Maroš Šefčovič

Vice-President of the European Commission, in charge of the the Energy Union

An unresolved conflict with Russia, uncoordinated national initiatives, climate change - the European energy policy faces serious challenges. The new commission led by president Jean-Claude Juncker collectively answers the questions ahead with one project: the Energy Union. In his presentation the vice-president of the European Commission, Maroš Šefčovič, explains how all EU member states can profit from such a union. Following up there will be time for discussion. The entry is free of charge!

Wednesday, June, 24th

6:00 - 7:30 p.m.

Straße des 17. Juni 136

TU Berlin, Room MA 001

(math building)